

NATIONAL RESERVE BANK OF TONGA

Prudential Statement No.3

ADMINISTRATIVE PENALTIES

Introduction

1. In terms of Section 18 of the Financial Institutions Act, 2004 the Reserve Bank may impose administrative fines not exceeding $5,000 plus $1,000 per day for each day of contravention where a licensed financial institution (LFI) has:

- Delayed the submission of reports or returns or publication as required by law, regulation, orders or other directives;
- Refused to permit an examination into the affairs of the institution; or
- Made a false statement in relation to any application or report required under the Act.

2. In addition to the administrative penalties for an LFI in terms of S18, Ss 24 and 25 impose penalties on individuals in relation to failure to lodge annual accounts and non-co-operation with inspections carried out or initiated by the Reserve Bank.

3. S24(3) indicates that failure to:

- publish a copy of the audited balance sheet and profit and loss account in a newspaper circulating in Tonga within 4 months of balance date;
- forward a copy to the Reserve Bank 30 days prior to publication; and
- make copies available in every branch in Tonga will result in a penalty of up to $10,000 for every director or manager who contravenes this section.

4. S25(5) indicates that every employee of an LFI who fails to co-operate in an inspection initiated by the Reserve Bank shall be liable to a fine not exceeding $1,000 for each day of contravention.

5. As well as a number of other actions under S33, the Reserve Bank may impose administrative penalties on a LFI, its officers, directors or shareholders for violation of any provisions of the Act for which a specific penalty does not apply. These provisions are listed in Attachment 1.

6. S83 provides that the Reserve Bank may levy and collect an administrative fine imposed under the Act and that in the event that a fine is not paid, the Reserve Bank may take civil action against the LFI to recover the amount due as a debt owed.

Policy

7. It is the responsibility of the board of directors and management of a LFI to ensure that it complies in a timely and accurate manner with the requirements of the Financial Institutions Act 2004. The Reserve Bank does not see administrative penalties as a revenue generating measure and would prefer a co-operative approach from LFIs to supervisory requirements. Nevertheless, the Reserve Bank will not hesitate to use administrative penalties where it believes these are necessary to emphasise the importance of devoting sufficient and appropriate resources to compliance tasks.

8. There will be very few cases in which the circumstances are essentially the same and, in general, establishing a list of penalties for specific infractions would inhibit the flexible and proportionate policy which the Reserve Bank proposes to adopt. There are a number of principles, however, that will guide the determination of the penalty:

- (a) The seriousness of the compliance breach;
- (b) the frequency and history of breaches and systemic weaknesses of the management systems or internal controls relating to the LFI's business;
- (c) The extent to which the breach is deliberate or reckless including whether the LFI failed to comply with its own procedures;
- (d) The size and financial resources of the LFI;
- (e) The extent (if any) to which the LFI benefited from the compliance breach;
- (f) the incentive the penalty provides to the LFI (and others) to comply with regulatory requirements;
- (g) consistency with penalties applied to the LFI (and others) in the past.
- (h) the conduct of the LFI in bringing (or failing to bring) quickly and completely the breach to the Reserve Bank's attention:
- (i) the level of co-operation demonstrated by the LFI during the investigation of the breach;
- (j) remedial steps taken since identification of the breach, including disciplinary action against staff involved (if appropriate), and steps to ensure that similar problems cannot arise in the future.

9. The most common area for application of administrative penalties is likely to be late or erroneous returns. Timely and accurate returns are essential for the effective performance of the Reserve Bank's supervisory functions. They are equally as important as internal reporting arrangements and penalties will be used to reinforce this message.

10. The Reserve Bank emphasises, that LFIs are expected to ensure that there are a suitable number of capable staff familiar with reporting and other compliance tasks and arrange leave and other absences so that requirements are met in a timely and accurate manner. It will not accept staff absence or pressure of work as a reason for not imposing an administrative penalty.

11. Penalties will be assessed in respect of individual returns in Attachment 2 and any other returns that the Reserve Bank may later issue that are late and/or erroneous. Penalties charged are listed in Attachment 3.

12. The Reserve Bank will treat a report which is materially incomplete or inaccurate as not received. An erroneous return is considered late, in effect, and will attract a per day penalty until such time as it is re-submitted and determined by the Reserve Bank to be error-free.

13. Failure to submit a report by the due date or free from error may indicate wider problems within the LFI, for which more serious sanctions or other enforcement action or both, may be appropriate.

14. A return that is both late and determined to be erroneous when it is received will be assessed and charged a flat fee and a daily penalty until such time as the Reserve Bank receives an amended return free from error.

15. In the case of errors between returns, only the return that triggers the error (in general, the last one to be filed of the returns affected) is subject to penalty, regardless of the number of returns affected. The date that last return is received by the Reserve Bank will be the starting date for the purpose of calculating the penalty. For example, FID 12 is linked to FID 13 data – if FID 13 data is wrong then FID 12 would also be wrong therefore penalty would be on FID 13 only until it gets revised correctly

16. Where an error is detected by an LFI and a revised return submitted a daily penalty will not be assessed and charged unless the LFI persistently reports errors.

17. Higher penalties will apply where an LFI repeatedly fails to submit its reports on time or where there is information that suggests that the delay was deliberate.

Payment and objection to penalties

18. The Reserve Bank will notify an LFI in writing of any administrative penalty imposed under the Financial Institutions Act, 2004, and the penalty will be payable 30 days after the date of the notice. The Reserve Bank will debit the LFI's Exchange Settlement Account with the amount of the penalty on the due date.

19. Section 19 of the Financial Institutions Act, 2004 provides that where a LFI objects to the penalties imposed under the Act it may within 14 days of the date of notification of the penalty submit reason(s) in writing for its objection to the Reserve Bank who may confirm, vary or rescind the penalty. The Reserve Bank will respond within 14 days of receipt of the objection.

20. If the decision is to proceed with the penalty, the LFI may request that the decision be reviewed, by writing to the Commissioner of Public Relations who is empowered by S11(1) of the Public Relations Act 2001 to investigate any administrative decision of the National Reserve Bank. The Commissioner of Public Relations may recommend that the Reserve Bank vary or rescind the penalty. Any adjustments will be made to the LFI's Exchange Settlement Account, as necessary.

NOTE ON ADMINISTRATIVE PENALTIES FOR LATE OR ERRONEOUS RETURNS

The distinction drawn between penalties for LFIs with assets under and over $80 million is designed to take account of the relative impact of a monetary fine on smaller and larger LFIs – in other words a $500 fine would have a greater impact on a smaller LFI than a larger LFI.

The flat charge should reflect the inherent seriousness of the problem e.g. for persistently late return there should be a continuing escalation within the limit set by the Act. The extent of the delay is allowed for in the escalating per day charge.

Other guiding principles are set out in the Prudential Statement.

Number of business days late	Flat amount (for erroneous returns)		Daily amount (for late returns)
	Under $80M	Over $80M	Under $80M	Over $80M
Over 28	$100	$200	$300	$600
22-28	$100	$200	$150	$300
15-21	$100	$200	$100	$200
8-14	$100	$200	$75	$150
1-7	$100	$200	$50	$100

For example:

- Late and wrong return – charge flat amount plus daily amount for each day until the return is submitted
- Early and wrong return – charge flat amount. Daily amount would be charged after the due date if the revised return is not submitted by due date
- Late and correct return – charge daily amount until the return is submitted.

FID 1-1 is due 10 business days from the end of the month, was received with errors and was late by 9 business days – a LFI with assets over $80M would be charged $1,200 which is the flat amount of $200 plus $700 ($100 * 7 days) plus $300 ($150 * 2 days)

Any exception to the above charges is subject to the Governor's approval/discretion. The Reserve Bank would notify the banks of any erroneous return(s) that needs to be corrected within 2 working days of the receipt of the returns. The banks would then be given 2 working days to provide correctly revised returns before the administrative penalties in this Statement for erroneous returns would apply.
